Straightening a Point.

The Commercial seeks to remove the sting of the New York Herald's scathing arraignment of Secretary Bayard by quoting from its columns an article opposing Mr. Boutelle's bill, to increase the duty on Canadian fish. We fail to see the connection. The Herald has expressed its opinion of the Secretary of State in very plain terms, charging that he alone is responsible for the present fishery trouble, but it disagrees with Mr. Boutelle as to the remedy to be applied. This is not at all surprising, as the Herald is a free trade organ. The sole basis of its opposition to the Boutelle bill, however, is very weak, had the Commercial been as anxious to aid the fishermen as it is to score a point against the Representatives from this District, who is doing all in his power to secure relief for this "meritorious and hard-working boy of our fellow-citizens." It would not have reproduced the article. The Herald declares that it is not fair to protect the fishermen by an increase of duty, while they rob the people by buying their supplies and hiring their crews in Canada. Such is not the fact. Less than one-fifth of the entire crews of the American fishing vessels are Canadians, and not five per cent of all the supplies used by them are purchased out of the United States. This point disposed of, nothing remains of the Herald's argument against the Boutelle bill.

Col. Edwards and the Grand Army.

When the Portland Arms after several weeks prudling succeeded in getting a card from Col. Edwards denying the specific charge that he had spoken of the Grand Army in most contemptuous terms, the Lewisburg Journal promised to furnish conclusive evidence in support of the allegation, and, as it says, it has produced testimony that would be abundantly ample to settle any issue in a court of law. It reproduces the affidavit of Hon. Enoch W. Woodbury, of Bethel, sworn to before a Justice of the Peace, and adds a supplemental statement from Mr. Woodbury who replies to the Journal's demand for the date and place where he heard Col. Edwards make use of the highly objectionable language, as follows:

The Argus calls upon the Lewisburg Journal to give the place and time of utterances it alleges. Col. Edwards said concerning the G. A. R.: Now, to answer the question of the Argus, Col. C. S. Edwards, of Bethel, on the 14th of June, 1886, for Augusta, saying that he was appointed a member of Gov. Smith's staff. Soon after his return, Bethel I met him on the street, and asked him if he found this satisfactory. (You will excuse me for not repeating the profanity with which his conversation abounded.) He said excitedly, "Gen. Chamberlain's a traitor." The G. A. R. are a political party run by the Negroes, they are a d—d lot of bummers, and if the party had been of my mind, they would have pulled the State House down over their heads if it had lasted even one day.

In 1886, Col. C. S. Edwards was a candidate for Representative to the Legislature, nominated by the Greenback party, and accepted by the Democrats (although it just had to say that some of the Greenbacks did not accept him).

So sure was he of an election, that his friends on the morning of election offered to bet $50 that he would carry Bethel by a majority of 75 to 80 over S. B. Twitchell, then the Rep. from the 1st.

He lost, however, by a majority of 100 to 90.

He became so disgusted with the personal solicitation of Col. Edwards to secure votes for himself during the day, that he told his friends that he would not go to the polls, and sat down to eat dinner and easily laid Mr. Cleveland's place to rest. The Democrats in Congress, like their opponents, are a body of sinners and honest men do often do much ill-informed but probably good work; moved by unduly pernicious but supposed need of our country, and not by their own judgment.

If he had the habit of hearing what members of his party say and drawing out what they think he would not be keeping a crossroad lawyer from Arkansas in the Adams office, and when he would not vote and say other things besides, that one would wonder if he had not been a traitor.

It is perfectly true that the Democrats in Congress disagree in many things. But they will not, nothing can be done to change that. His attitude toward the party has weakened it in the country. His choice of a party to represent him in Congress is a bad one. FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capital.

In Favor of Third Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Senator Wilson of Iowa, from the committee on postoffices and post roads, to-day reported favorably the bill to amend the Revised Statutes so as to authorize the Postmaster General in his discretion to allow each postmaster a reasonable sum out of the surplus revenues of their office for rent and other expenses.

Recommendation Passed Over the President's Veto.

Mr. Blair of the pension committee recommended the bill, saying that the bills to amend the Revised Statutes passed by the Senate and House were well worth the trouble.

As far as I can see, the bill is well worth the trouble.

The Senate and House have passed the bill.

The St. Louis Post Office.

The Senate has removed the injunction of secrecy from the reports of some of its committees in regard to a number of important legislation.

The Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, to whom was referred the nomination of William Hyde, to be postmaster at St. Louis, Missouri, in the place of Rodney J. Walker, suspended submission of his name to the Senate.

The bill to amend the Revised Statutes to provide for the disbursement of funds to the postmaster of William H. Clifford of Portland, who had voted for Congressman Fred G. Biddeford presented the name of James H. Hinckley of Biddeford, but it was not made a committee.
